Hamilton / Allegan County mourn death of Chief Haverdink

Struck by vehicle while assisting at accident scene

By Gari Voss

The call began as a medical incident on M-40 near 136th Avenue in Heath Township in Allegan County at about 6pm on Tuesday, December 23, 2025, but in an instant, everything went wrong when the announcement came that there had been a car/pedestrian incident.

Hamilton Fire Chief David Haverdink had responded to the medical call. In the process of assisting the person in crisis, Haverdink was struck by a passing vehicle. He was immediately transported to University of Michigan Health West in Wyoming but succumbed to his injuries on December 25, 2025.

In his 74 years, Haverdink had been a member of the Hamilton Department for 51 years. During that time, he took time from 1993-2000 to serve as the sheriff of Allegan County then served as the Hamilton Fire Chief for more than 40 years.

Responses to the incident gave Haverdink resounding high marks for respect.

Sgt. Kyle Baker with the Allegan County Sheriff's Office shared, "Chief Haverdink is widely respected throughout all of West Michigan, serving on numerous boards and organizations, and providing outstanding service to citizens throughout the Hamilton Fire Department's coverage area."

"Dave was a great person and a highly respected leader in public service whose impact was felt throughout Southwest Michigan," stated South Haven Area Emergency Chief Brandon Hinz.

Martin Township Fire & Rescue concurred, "Chief Haverdink served the citizens of Hamilton and surrounding areas faithfully for over 50 years. His leadership and legacy were felt countywide, and we wish all our extended family at Hamilton Fire and Chief's immediate family strength and peace as they navigate this very difficult time."

Hamilton Fire Department Chief Dave Haverdink passed on Thurs., Dec. 25, 2025, from injuries he suffered on Tues., Dec. 23rd when he answered a call to assist in a medical emergency on M-40 near 136th Ave. in Heath Township. Photo courtesy of Hamilton Fire Department.

This respect grew because of Haverdink's responses to and interactions with those he served. "This man was a good cop," explained Faron Frazee of Allegan. "Way back in 1996, I was in a head on collision on A37. A woman was passing in a no passing zone, and I was miraculously unharmed. I was pregnant at the time, very shaken and in shock. He took the time to get me water, and he waited with me until my husband came to pick me up. He checked up on me a week later. I'm very sorry for your loss, and I thank you for sharing him with us."

Sandy Rasche-Borden wrote her heart-felt thoughts, "We thank you for your loyalty and dedicated service to your community. With honor and respect you will be remembered always and missed dearly. Sending prayers and gentle hugs to your family, friends and community."

Though the current incident was not attributed to alcohol or speed, there are still details that are unclear. Many have expressed anger toward not only the driver in this situation, but all those who refuse to slow down and move over when approaching flashing lights beside thoroughfares. Haverdink was the 36th emergency response person struck when working a scene in 2025.

Michigan's Move Over Law states that it is necessary to "slow down and move over for stationary authorized vehicles with flashing, rotating, or oscillating lights activated."

Emergency response officers, tow-truck drivers, construction workers, good Samaritans, and more have been struck by drivers who are not paying attention. Drivers get distracted. Grand Rapids Fire Department Battalion Chief Richard Clark reflected on stops made by his crews. "[Drivers] want to see what's going on ... so they're not looking, and we could be coming out from behind something, or they do not see that there are accidents on both sides of the highway. Or sometimes, we're not quite in position yet if the accident just happened in front of them. And we get close calls every day. Tragedies happen less often, thank God, but the close calls happen all the time. We just ask that drivers show respect by slowing down to prevent accidents."

In 51 years of answering all types of calls, Haverdink dealt with more tragedy than he would have liked to share. In the same voice, he answered those calls and cared.

Sgt. Kyle Baker with the Allegan County Sheriff's Office said. "The family and the Hamilton Fire Department request peace, privacy, and prayer as they work through this deeply troubling time."

Funeral services for the chief will be held at Central Wesleyan Church, 446 W. 40th St., Holland on Tuesday, January 6, 2026, starting at 1 p.m. Visitation will be on Monday, January 5, 2026, from 3 p.m. - 7 p.m. at Central Wesleyan Church.

Michigan's largest New Year's Eve Ball Drop in Allegan

By Parker Johnson

Bundle up and count down to 2026 with the LARGEST New Year's Eve ball drop in Michigan!

Downtown Allegan doesn't have much in common with New York City, but one thing this small West Michigan community mirrors each year is the iconic Times Square New Year's Eve Ball. By comparison, the Allegan ball measures 10 feet, 6 inches in diameter — the largest in Michigan! Featuring 30,000 synchronized LED lights, the ball drops 50 feet along the Downtown Allegan Riverfront as the community counts down the final seconds before midnight. This free, family-friendly outdoor event annually draws more than 3,000 attendees from across the Mitten State and beyond.

From 8pm to midnight on December 31, enjoy a variety of food trucks, hot drinks, alcoholic beverages, massive fire pits, a silent disco, free ice skating, and live music from Trixy Tang — West Michigan's premier high-energy rock 'n' roll party band covering crowd favorites from the 70s, '80s, and '90s. The night will culminate with the countdown and a brilliant fireworks show over the Kalamazoo River at the stroke of midnight.

For more information, visit downtownallegan.com, Downtown Allegan on Facebook, and @downtownallegan on Instagram.

From 8am to Midnight on Wednesday, Dec. 31, 2025, all of the favorites return to the Allegan Riverfront Park to ring in the New Year! Revelers can skate, dance, eat, drink, enjoy the fire pit, listen to live music, and mingle with friends. Photo: G. Voss

BRONSON

It's time of year when blood donations most needed

By Gari Voss

The snow began early during the fall of 2025. While the normal requirements for blood donations stayed solid, weather related accidents and health rose, and the call for whole blood, red cells, platelets, and plasma increased. Not only did the need arise, but the weather made giving efforts more difficult. The American Red Cross is asking everyone to roll up their sleeves and give.

A quick reminder… Every 2 seconds someone uses blood; 1 in 3 African-American blood donors is a match for a patient with sickle cell disease; 25% of the blood supply is used by patients battling cancer with 8 platelet units used per week per patient for chemotherapy treatment; and 1 in 83 infant deliveries requires a transfusion. In addition, 1 in 7 hospitalized patients will need blood which equals almost 42,000 blood components every day, and almost 30,000 red blood cells are used every day.

A single donation can save multiple lives because a pint of blood can be used as whole blood, red blood cells, platelets, and plasma. A quick course in Blood 101 - Whole blood contains red cells, white cells and platelets suspended in plasma. Red blood cells carry hemoglobin and are essential for oxygen exchange in the lungs. Platelets are small cell fragments whose main function is to interact with clotting problems to stop or prevent bleeding. Plasma is a fluid composed of 92% water and 8% proteins, mineral salts, sugars, fats, hormones and vitamins. Different folks require different components to return to better health.

Overall, U.S. blood donations are low with only 3-5% of eligible people stepping forward to donate. Females lead in the donor department at 54.1%. Within those numbers, 12.2% of whole blood donations in the U.S. come from minority donors, and 26.3% of all whole blood donations in the U.S. are from first time donors.

For registered blood donors, the call has been consistent for O-positive and O-negative blood. 38% of Americans have O+ that has multiple uses, while O- is the most universal but only 7% of the U.S. population is O-.

To encourage these donors to step forward, the Red Cross has offered incentives. For those donating blood between Dec. 20 and Jan 31, extra bonus points can be earned to use in stores. Even more enticing, if blood is given between Jan. 1 and 25, 2026, the donor has a chance to win a getaway to Super Bowl LX in California with access to day-of in-stadium pregame activities, tickets to the official Super Bowl Experience, three-night hotel accommodations, plus a $1,000 gift card for expenses.

Versiti also has incentives for those who donate blood between Dec. 22 and Jan. 3, the donor receives a $25 e-gift card. Just enter code JOY in the online appointment notes. Donors must have a valid email on file and complete the donation.

Those in the Allegan County area can check in with both the American Red Cross and Versiti.

Tues., Jan. 6, 2026: Hopkins Community Church
Tues., Jan. 13, 2026: Otsego Moose Lodge
Thurs., Jan. 15, 2026: First Baptist Church, Allegan
Thurs., Jan. 21, 2026: Griswold Auditorium, Allegan
Mon., Jan. 26, 2026: Hopkins High School
Thurs, Jan. 29, 2026: Hamilton Reformed Church
Tues., Feb. 3, 2026: Church of God, Otsego
Wed., Feb. 4, 2026: Griswold Auditorium, Allegan
Mon., Feb. 23, 2026: Allegan High School

Tues., Dec. 30, 2025: Wayland VFW Post 7581
Tues., Dec. 30, 2025: Byron Center Community Center
Wed., Dec. 31, 2025: Holland Hospital
Fri., Jan. 1, 2026: First Reformed Church, Holland

It is estimated that if 1% more Americans donate blood, the shortage would be alleviated. The beauty is that an organization or group can host a donation event with either the American Red Cross or Versiti.

Both organizations give donors the opportunity to schedule appointments that will shorten the time spent waiting to give blood, and donors can choose what type of unit they would like to give. Anyone 18 years and up can donate. Those 16-17 years old will require a parent's or caregiver's permission.

Things to consider before donating would be to drink plenty of clear fluids, eat a balanced meal, and know that there are patients who can benefit from that one bag of blood.

As the American Red Cross shared, "Like the unique snowflakes used to build snowmen and igloos each winter, your reason for donating is unique to you. Whether you donate in honor of a loved one, as gratitude for blood you've received in the past, or simply because you want to make the world a better place, we're grateful that you've responded to the call."

Fennville plans major water, road and sidewalk infrastructure improvements for 2026

By Art Nicholas

City Pursues Low-Interest Bond to Fund $2.5 Million in Drinking Water Projects

FENNVILLE — The City of Fennville is embarking on an ambitious capital improvement plan for 2026, with drinking water infrastructure taking center stage as officials seek to address aging systems and meet state safety requirements.

The city is applying for a Drinking Water State Revolving Fund (DWSRF) bond, a low-interest loan program offering rates between 1-2%, to help finance approximately $2.5 million in water-related improvements. The financing strategy aims to spread costs over multiple years rather than burdening ratepayers with immediate rate increases.

"The best way to fund these improvements would be through a bond, in order to spread out the costs over many years," according to the city's capital improvements plan.

Well Replacement Tops Priority List

The most expensive single project planned for 2026 is the replacement of Well 8 with an estimated cost of $750,000. The 49-year-old well is critical to the city's water supply, especially following the contamination and closure of Well 6. City officials are exploring federal funding through congressional earmarks, though uncertain federal budget conditions may require alternative funding sources.

The lead service line replacement project, budgeted at $300,000, addresses state-mandated requirements under Michigan's Lead and Copper Rule. Fennville has approximately 100 known galvanized lines that need replacement, though that number could change as the city completes additional investigation work. Officials plan to replace all lead service lines in a single project to reduce overall costs and secure better pricing from contractors.

Water Tower, Main Street Sewer Also Targeted

The city's 50-year-old water tower requires $450,000 in rehabilitation work, including sandblasting and repainting to address rust issues, along with equipment upgrades such as a new generator. The project is expected to extend the tower's useful life by 30 years.

A sewer main lining project on Main Street, estimated at $96,000, will repair a 67-year-old line that suffered a break in 2024, requiring emergency excavation. The original sewer line was installed in 1964 and has experienced root intrusion and overall deterioration.

Major Road and Sidewalk Reconstruction Planned

The most comprehensive project on the 2026 agenda is the 58th Street reconstruction, carrying a $1 million price tag. The work includes full road reconstruction, new sidewalks where none currently exist, and replacement of a 65-year-old water main dating to 1966. The DWSRF funds will help cover repaving costs for road sections where water main replacement is needed.

Wilson Street repaving, budgeted at $90,000, represents a cost-saving opportunity as Allegan County Road Commission plans to pave the county's portion of the road. The 28-year-old street currently rates a 4 on the PASER scale, and its replacement will increase the percentage of positively-rated city roads by 9%.

Additional Infrastructure and Administrative Projects

Several smaller but significant projects round out the 2026 capital plan. The city is installing security cameras at an estimated cost of $35,000 to protect recently built park assets and other city property. The cameras will aid with policing efforts and provide information about vandalism incidents.

The ambulance station, which is 51 years old, needs a new roof at a cost of $50,000. These costs will be shared with other communities that are part of the Emergency Medical Services interlocal agreement.

Administrative improvements include a charter revision commission, budgeted at $15,000, to update provisions in Fennville's City Charter. The charter was last amended in 1996 and originally adopted in 1961. Best practices recommend charter amendments approximately every 30 years.

A retaining wall replacement on West Fennville Street, estimated at $5,000, will address deteriorating timber structures abutting city-owned sidewalks.

Funding Strategy Emphasizes Long-Term Planning

The 2026 capital improvements plan reflects a strategic approach to infrastructure maintenance, with projects scored based on age, condition, and community need. City officials emphasize that the DWSRF bond program's favorable interest rates make it an ideal vehicle for funding these necessary but expensive improvements while managing the impact on water rates.

The projects scheduled for 2026 represent routine maintenance and replacement of aging infrastructure alongside compliance with state drinking water regulations, positioning Fennville to maintain reliable municipal services for years to come.

The complete Capital Improvements Plan for 2026-2031 is available on the City of Fennville's website at www.fennville.org .

Bicyclist dies when struck by car in Plainwell

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

A day that many consider to be one of the most joyous of the year took a tragic turn in Gun Plain Township on Christmas night.

On Thursday, Dec. 25, a 52-year-old Plainwell-area man was killed after being struck by a vehicle while riding his bicycle.

According to the Michigan State Police, troopers from the Wayland Post responded at approximately 7:15 p.m. to a vehicle-versus-bicycle crash on 10th Street south of Miller Road, north of the city of Plainwell.

The bicyclist was pronounced dead at the scene.

The driver of the vehicle, a 40-year-old man from Kalamazoo, was not injured and was cooperative with investigators, police said.

MSP reported that both the vehicle and the bicycle were traveling northbound at the time of the crash.

Heavy fog was present in the area, and the bicycle did not have lights, according to police.

Authorities said no impairment is believed to have been a factor in the crash.

The incident remains under investigation.

Michigan built one of the largest batteries in the country using water, gravity, and geography. The Ludington Pumped Storage Plant along the Lake Michigan shoreline can generate 2,292 megawatts of electricity when needed, while having the ability to cut back production at the flick of a switch. Looking at hydroelectricity differently

By Gari Voss

Allegan County hydroelectric furnished by the Kalamazoo River has been disappearing over time. The dams from Plainwell to Allegan are slowly disappearing. Those areas are being returned to their natural state with grassland, forests, and basic wetland habitats. Was it time to eliminate these dams and look at other environmentally friendly ways to produce electricity that is in greater demand than ever? Probably.

What will replace these small, but mighty, powerhouses? Wind? Solar? Coal? Gas? Nuclear?

Before leaving hydroelectric behind, electric providers might wish to return to Ludington, Michigan. High above Lake Michigan, there is one of the largest grid-scale storage systems in the United States. It does not have large arms or huge panels that face the sun or black smoke rising from its smokestacks or even pipes filled with gas or lithium. It is a huge swimming pool that works like a giant gravity battery. This is the Ludington Pumped Storage Plant.

The plant was built beginning in 1969 and came online in 1973 in response to the problems of nuclear plants. Where nuclear plants produce steady, round-the-clock power, the production output cannot easily be adjusted up or down thus leaving excess electricity overnight. The Ludington Plant solved the problem. When demand increases during the day, water is released downhill through turbines that generate electricity on demand. At night the downhill flow is adjusted.

Thus, Ludington controlled electricity using gravity, which works much like the same stabilizing role as wind and solar by absorbing excess generation and releasing electricity when the grid needs it most.

The location is perfect with Lake Michigan serving as the base reservoir, and a natural, efficient tank as the upper reservoir that holds about 27 billion gallons of water. Could a similar plant be constructed along the high banks of the Kalamazoo River?

When designing the plant, several factors were taken into consideration. First, water was needed to fill the reservoirs, and that water needed to be easily accessible. There would be evaporation from both the upper and lower reservoirs, so a system was necessary for replacement. The infrastructure required building the upper and lower reservoirs, a pump house with a turbine and generator, installation of tunnels and pipelines connecting the reservoirs, and access to a power substation. For Ludington, it was check, check and check.

To generate electricity, water is released from the upper reservoir, travels through the pipes, spins the turbine that runs the generator to generate electricity that is sent into the power grid when energy demand is high. The water finishes its run to the lower reservoir.

To "recharge" the system when energy demand is low, power is taken from the grid. The turbine is then used to pump water from the lower reservoir to the upper reservoir. The upper reservoir is then refilled and ready for the next downhill run.

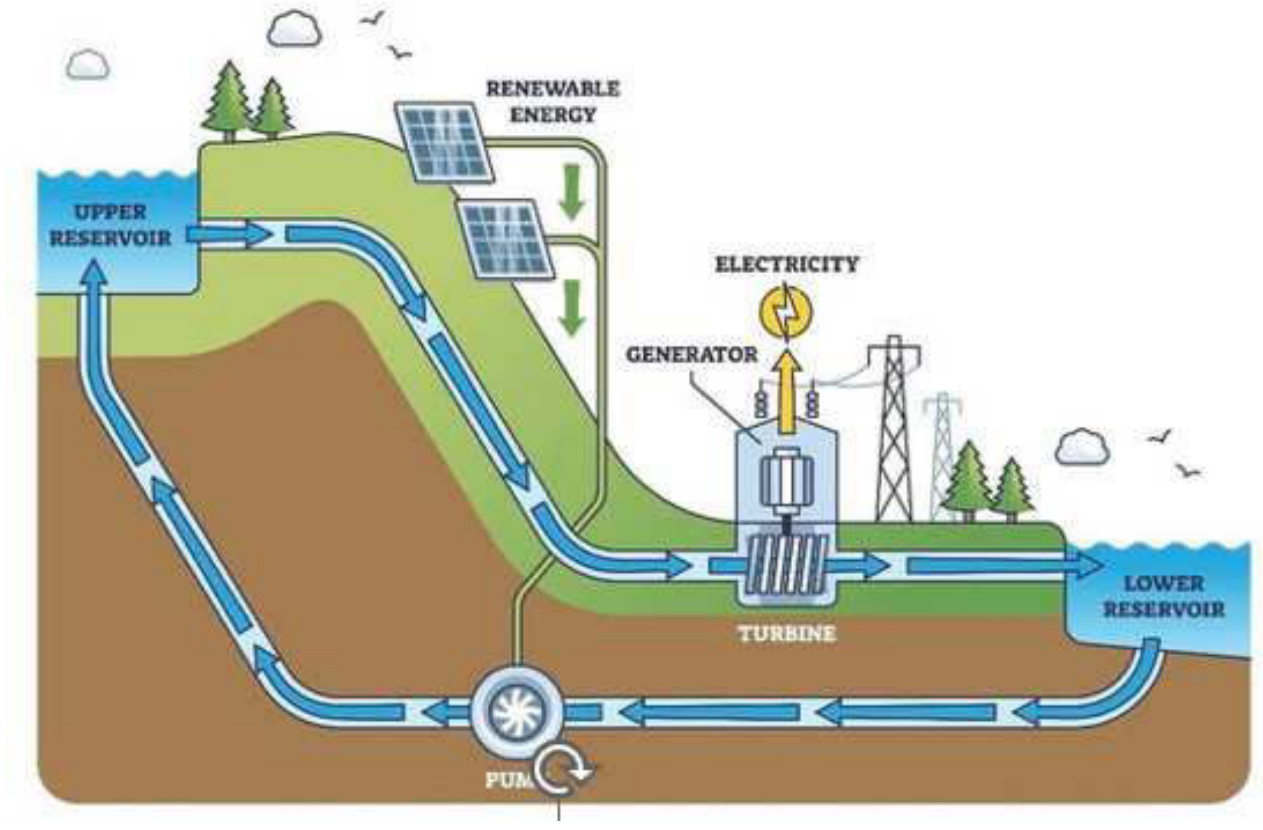
In more modern systems, rather than using the turbine to carry the water uphill, solar panels run a pump in the return line. This adds another layer of sustainable energy.

The Ludington Pumped Storage Plant is located about 4 miles south of Ludington on 1,000 acres along Lake Michigan. Consumers Energy shares ownership with Detroit Edison (DTE) Energy. The site is ideal, since Lake Michigan serves as the lower reservoir, and a natural elevation difference of nearly 400 feet makes storage efficient. The upper reservoir is 2.5 miles long and one mile wide and can hold roughly 27 billion gallons of water. It generates up to 1,872 megawatts of electricity, which is enough to power a community of 1.4 million residential customers.

The plant celebrated its 50th anniversary in 2023 after an upgrade in 2013 that expanded its generating capacity from 1,872 megawatts to 2,292 megawatts by replacing its six turbines with more efficient models. Thus, it will continue to have the ability to produce energy when demand is not constant and works in tandem with wind and solar energy generation to ensure the grid always has a strong supply of electricity.

The Ludington Pumped Storage Plant is often referred to as the World's Largest Batteries and an engineering marvel that earned The American Society of Civil Engineers' Outstanding Civil Engineering Achievement in 1973 and was named one of Michigan's Top 10 civil engineering projects in the 20th century.

According to Visit Ludington, "The plant can be reached by driving south on Lakeshore Drive, off Old US-31. Visitors can climb to the observation deck, which overlooks the plant's 842-acre reservoir. The view is incredible from the top, with Stearns Beach and the Ludington North Breakwater Light clearly visible in the distance. The observation deck is open Memorial Day-Labor Day."



A Pumped Hydropower Storage Plant utilizes a natural water source, geography, and gravity to create electricity that can be controlled according to need. During periods of high demand, water is released from the upper reservoir to travel through the turbine that runs the generator to send electricity into the grid. During periods of lower demand, the downhill water flow is cutback, and the system takes this opportunity to pull water from the lower reservoir to refill the upper reservoir. The Ludington Pumped Storage Plant along the Lake Michigan runs six turbines and can meet the demands of 1.4 million residential customers.

Life as Performance Art

G CORWIN STOPPEL

In the 1950 movie "Harvey" Jimmy Stewart plays Elwood P. Dowd, a certifiable eccentric befriended by 6-foot invisible rabbit named Harvey.

It's a light comedy, but at one point Dowd says something meaningful: that in order to be liked, one had to be "Oh, so nice or oh, so wealthy."

On the whole, being liked is a good thing. It comes with advantages such as having a permanent seat at the Cool Kids Table in the cafeteria, being elected president of things, name recognition and so on. Being liked is sometimes deemed more important that good looks for moving forward in life.

In today's culture, those who resort heavily to social media or seek to make their fame and fortune as an "influencer" work hard to accumulate "likes" on their posts. The more likes the more status.

Enough thumbs up and heart icons can lead to more followers. For those who make their living off the internet, more followers mean more advertising revenue. At its finest, it means retiring decades early.

Of course there is a saturation point for all these influencers. It is a rough life, always having to create something new that others will consume. Every creative endeavor is risky because it could fail and bring down the influencer.

The competition is greater because trends and popularity constantly pivot. One change in our culture and the crowd turns against an influencer. It is game over and they are hasbeens that lead people to ask, "Who?" It's like the Old West where there is always a new kid with a faster gun.

Even for those who are not trying to get rich via social influencing, there is something addictive about their number of followers and likes. It is competitive, sometimes with a scoop shovel full of smugness: "Oh, I have more followers than you and many more likes." Instantly, they feel like a superior person.

That sort of addiction to risk and success promotes release of dopamine, that feel-good chemical in our brain that shopaholics get after a spending spree, drug

The far greater danger is when someone is so addicted to being liked they will do almost anything to get the next hit. People so desperate to be liked are sometimes willing to trade it for their self-respect. They are willing to sell their souls in return for a short-lasting hit of dopamine.

We can cut corners. It doesn't matter our age or profession. It doesn't take great brains to do it because we can always figure out a method.

Years ago, when I was teaching college history, we talked about academic honesty. In short, no plagiarism. Wikipedia was becoming increasingly popular, and it was a shortcut for students who didn't want to put in the hard work. They could lift out whole paragraphs, change a few words and pass it off as their own.

One of my students apparently did not get the memo on honesty. I caught him when he wrote a term paper that was well out of his league. I asked if he had used Wiki and he was firm he didn't cheat. "My sister did my homework for me," he explained.

If they didn't get caught they got good grades. But ultimately, how would you like to entrust your life to a lawyer or surgeon who cheated his or her way through school, passed their exams and got into their profession? Sooner or later, they will be found out and people will lose respect for them.

Today, it is even easier because of AI, Chat GPT and a host of other programs. Like all clergy, I face that challenge every week. Do I do the study and preparation for the Sunday message, or spend a few minutes and let AI do it for me? Every newspaper writer and editor faces the same challenge.

When we take these shortcuts in life, regardless of the project we are doing or our profession, we lose a bit of our self-respect. We might buffalo others, but we know the truth. As a result, we will forever be looking over our shoulder to see if someone has caught on to us.

Even if we get away with it for years, we know we were a 14-carat fake. Our self-respect is gone. We'll see it every time we look in a mirror. That is no way to live, and we know it.

The British have an interesting phrase they use to say goodbye to someone important to them: "Mind how you go." It is more than drive safely, be careful out there or some other phrase.

This is a reminder about making moral and legal choices, and be certain to make the right ones. Your reputation depends on it.

When Silence Walks Louder Than Shouting

MIKE'S MUSINGS

MIKE WILCOX

■ PUBLISHER ■

In a world addicted to outrage, the most radical protest I've seen lately involved no slogans, no megaphones, and no demands shouted into the air. It was a line of Buddhist monks walking.

I first noticed this on Facebook. The monks were walking through West Point, Georgia, where I lived for several years. The streets were lined with thousands of people cheering the monks on as they continued their 2300-mile trek across America.

The monks walking for peace are a group of Theravada Buddhist monks from the Huong Dao Vipassana Bhavana Center in Fort Worth, Texas. In late 2025, they set out on a 2,300-mile Peace Walk from Texas to Washington, D.C., moving city to city across the United States on foot. Their aim is simple and audacious at once: to spread messages of peace, unity, healing, and compassion in a country that often seems allergic to all four.

They walk at the pace of the human body, not the news cycle. There are no barricades, no rallies staged for cameras. Just shaved heads, simple robes, and steady steps along American roads built for speed, not reflection.

Led by Venerable Bhikku Pannakara, also known as Thich Tuệ Nhân, the monks are joined by an unlikely companion, a rescue dog named Aloka, whose quiet presence only deepens the sense of gentleness surrounding the journey. They rely entirely on goodwill for sustenance, following monastic traditions that include eating one meal a day and sleeping outdoors. This is not performance. It is practice.

The walk has not blocked traffic or trended for long. There are no fiery speeches or clenched fists. Instead, there is silence, measured movement, and the discipline of putting one foot in front of the other. In an age that rewards volume, this kind of presence feels almost subversive.

That is precisely why it matters.

The monks are not naïve about the country they are walking through. They pass through a nation fractured by politics, shaped by gun violence, economic anxiety, and cultural exhaustion. Their silence is not an escape from reality. It is a refusal to meet chaos on its own terms.

Modern protest often mirrors the anger it opposes. We shout at those who shout. We dehumanize those we accuse of dehumanization. Somewhere along the way, the goal of peace gets lost in the performance of being right. The monks' walk offers a different proposition: that peace begins not with victory, but with discipline.

There is something unsettling about watching people who are not trying to persuade you, recruit you, or defeat an opponent. As they move mile after mile toward Washington, the monks do not ask for agreement or allegiance. They do not explain themselves in sound bites. They embody the values they are advocating. Compassion. Restraint. Inner calm. Qualities that feel increasingly out of place in public life.

Critics may dismiss the walk as symbolic, even ineffective. Symbols, after all, do not change policy or stop bullets. But this criticism misses the point. The monks are not offering legislation. They are issuing a moral challenge.

The challenge is this: if peace is something we claim to want, why do we practice everything but?

We consume outrage like entertainment. We reward cruelty with clicks. We treat disagreement as a threat rather than a fact of living among other humans. Then we act surprised when conflict escalates. The monks' walk, unfolding across 2,300 miles of American pavement, holds up a mirror and asks us to look at our own posture. Not our opinions, but our way of being.

Walking is slow. It forces presence. You cannot multitask your way across a continent. You feel the heat of the road, the strain in your legs, the uncertainty of what lies ahead. In that sense, the walk itself is the message. Peace cannot be rushed. It cannot be optimized. It requires resilience.

There is also humility in walking. You are exposed to weather, to strangers, to discomfort. You pass through communities without claiming them. You leave no debris behind. Compare that with the scorched-earth tone of much of our political and cultural discourse, and the contrast becomes hard to ignore.

The monks do not pretend their journey will end wars or heal a divided nation overnight. They understand that peace is not a switch to be flipped but a practice to be repeated, often without applause. Their faith lies in accumulation. One step. Then another. One mile. Then the next.

The monks' Peace Walk does not demand our attention as it passes through American cities. It invites our reflection. And perhaps that is the most unsettling part of all. Without shouting at us, it asks a quiet question we cannot easily ignore: if peace looks like this, why are we so reluctant to try it ourselves?

Sometimes the loudest statement is made by those who refuse to raise their voices and keep walking anyway.

THE HISTORY AND TRADITIONS OF NEW YEAR'S

As the calendar turns, New Year's celebrations mark both an ending and a beginning, a tradition that dates back thousands of years and spans cultures across the globe.

Historians trace the earliest New Year observances to ancient Mesopotamia, nearly 4,000 years ago. The Babylonians celebrated the new year during the spring equinox with a multi-day festival tied to agricultural cycles and renewal. Rather than marking a single night, the occasion focused on restoring balance and reaffirming commitments to the coming year.

The modern January 1st New Year did not take hold until 46 B.C., when Julius Caesar reformed the Roman calendar, creating what is now known as the Julian calendar. January was named after Janus, the Roman god of beginnings and transitions, often depicted with two faces looking both backward and forward. This symbolism remains closely associated with New Year's reflections today.

Over time, New Year's traditions evolved to include customs still familiar in modern celebrations. The practice of making resolutions can be traced to ancient Romans, who promised good conduct to the gods at the start of each year. Today's resolutions, while more personal than religious, reflect the same desire for self-improvement and renewal.

Midnight celebrations became popular as clocks and standardized timekeeping spread, turning the exact moment of the new year into a shared experience. Fireworks, bells, and public gatherings were used to mark the transition and drive away bad luck, a belief still common in many cultures.

Food traditions also play a central role. In parts of the United States, black-eyed peas are eaten for good fortune, while other cultures celebrate with grapes, noodles, or lentils, each symbolizing prosperity, longevity, or abundance.

Though customs vary widely, the meaning of New Year's remains remarkably consistent. It is a moment for reflection, hope, and renewal, offering communities and individuals alike the opportunity to look ahead with optimism while honoring the year left behind.

We at the Allegan County News, Commercial Record, and Union Enterprise, are very optimistic for the New Year, and hope it brings good tidings, health, and prosperity to all.

LIVING WITH GRIEF

BY RONNIE EWING/ AFTERCARE SPECIALIST

LIVING WITH GRIEF, is a monthly column provided by GordenFuneral Residence. Each month LIVING WITH GRIEF will feature some helpful advice as you the reader move forward through your personal grieving process, or simply want to be educated to help those whom you may know have recently experienced a loss, or traumatic event.

Ever heard the saying, "Preaching to the Choir.." or "Practice what you preach.."?

I recently lost my Mom..

You know you can have all the tools, materials, and training needed to push through Grief, but it still comes down to a choice. Moving forward is easier said than done most day's.

For me personally, I had too many responsibilities at first to actually take the time to grieve. Holiday's were the worst! Who is going to embrace the role of the unfiltered conversationalist? Mom was so good at that... She'd say the damndest things! One thing for me, was wondering when the wave was going to hit. Hoping and praying I would be at least, alone. So I could just purge, you follow? My, regrets, thanks, most of all that need to be forgiven, for dumb stuff….

Your choice is, just that. Your choice. You can choose to bask in the waters of sorrow and negativity, or use your Grief for something a bit more constructive. Everyone grieves differently, and there is no correct way to mourn loss. For me it comes and goes. Mostly selfish, is not that the truth about grief?

We miss the position the person held in our hearts and lives. Our considerations rarely focus on our loved release of pain, sickness, etc. What helps me, is knowing my Mom is with her Savior and Lord, Jesus. Where she is, is void of visits to Doctors, being placed on another pill, scheduling another surgery, etc. She can finally be at peace…

And that is what truly helps me, LIVING WITH GRIEF.

Blizzard semi crash closes roads

By Scott Sullivan
Writer

Monday's blizzard brought chaos to local roads when a northbound semi slid off I-196, plunged down the Old Allegan Road overpass and caught fire there.

First responders — who battled whiteout conditions, heavy snow and 45-60 mph wind gusts — found the driver had escaped the truck with help from a bystander. But the vehicle was fully engaged in flame.

"It was a miracle he walked away from it," said Saugatuck Township Fire District Chief Greg Janik. "He was transported to the hospital but did not sustain life-threatening injuries."

Both north- and south-bound freeway lanes were closed at first, but southbound reopened later that morning. At press time Tuesday, northbound I-196 and Old Allegan Road remained closed pending assessment of the bridge damage.

Footage and photos posted to Chicago & Midwest Storm Chasers as shown here depict the carnage. Details remain under investigation.

Faces in the Crowd

By G C Stoppel

It's that time of the year again when we start thinking about our New Year's Resolutions for 2026. And now you know the question of the week!

-Man near the Fennville hardware store: "Well, if the world is going to end, I hereby and firmly resolve to drink more beer and eat more burgers and fries while there is still time!" Laughs and gives a long and aromatic beer belch.

-Friend with him: 'I don't really make any resolutions, other than to be a good man."

-Mother and son near the Fennville grocery store; Boy: "I made my list and it's good and long. Wanna see it?" He pulled out a sheet of paper and began reading. His mother quickly brought the recitation to an end. "Mine is to keep up with him," she said.

-Two parents and children in front of the Allegan Public Library; First boy, "I'm gonna read allllll the books in the library." His brother: "I'll read them all before you!" Mother, "I'll bet that doesn't last long. They'll forget about it by dinnertime and be on to something else."

-Woman in front of the Episcopal Church: "Oh, I suppose the usual. You know, save money, lose weight, and things like that. That's been my resolutions for years and I haven't gotten it right year." Laughs.

-Man near the Allegan Post Office; shakes his head and says he hasn't thought too much about it. "I'm pretty satisfied the way I em, It's the nation and the world that needs fixing, and that's beyond my pay grade."

-Friend with him: "Don't you dare laugh at me, but my grandson roughed out some wood, and him and his wife gave me some knives for wood-carving. I told them how Tom Hunter had them X-acto Blades and paints in his place, and I missed out on getting them at the time. So, I'm going to give it a spin."

-Man near the front of Minnie's; Big smile, "The wife got me a new rod and reel, so you know what I'll be doing soon as the water opens up." Laughs. "That could be any day now."

-Woman near the ACCF office: "This New Year's Eve, at 11:59, I'm giving up chocolates for the rest of the year. I'll start again at the stroke of midnight on the first. I've done it for years, and my mother before me."

-Man near the Huntington Bank: "I start in December, thinking through what worked and didn't work, what I wanted to add to my life and what I wanted to get rid of. I think it's important to hit the ground running on New Year's Day, not starting some useless wishful thinking."

Allegan swim alumni visit current Tigers at recent meet

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

It was a blast from the (not-so-distant) past for Allegan swim & dive coach Carol Gephart when the boys' team hosted Sturgis on Dec. 16.

Six former Allegan swimmers who are now competing at the collegiate level returned to their old stomping grounds to visit Gephart and the current Tigers.

"It was incredibly meaningful for me personally," Gephart said of the reunion. "I'm always so happy to see them, not just because of what they've accomplished, but because they still want to be there.

"It means a great deal to me that they enjoy swimming enough to continue with it, and they're just genuinely wonderful people. Seeing them back felt very special."

Three of the six retuning alumni compete for Aquinas College—Conrad Eichbauer, Titus Smith and Nolynn Coombs. Two others—Mikayla Reimink and Brooke Houser—are teammates at Davenport University.

Maddie Antkoviak, who swims for Olivet Nazarene University in Illinois, also returned.

"Many of our former swimmers are home for Christmas, which often brings them back to the pool to swim while visiting," Gephart said. "I always make a point to let them know they're welcome anytime.

"During that period, they were all around, swimming and reconnecting, and it felt natural to invite them back together."

Having the alumni back at the pool was special for the current Allegan swimmers and divers, as many of them grew up watching the alumni

"It had a very positive impact," Gephart said. "The younger swimmers really look up to the college athletes, and having them back in the water — and even helping at practices — means a lot. Their advice carries real weight, and it's inspiring for the younger boys to see what's possible.

"I love having them around. It's a powerful and motivating experience for the team."

The fact that so many former members of the Allegan swim & dive program want to return also speaks to the culture of the program.

"I think it reflects the culture we try very intentionally to create," Gephart said. "I aim to keep things balanced — not overdoing it, not overtraining — so swimmers don't burn out or grow tired of the sport.

"We focus on keeping swimming fun and positive. I hope the pool feels like a second home to them during the season, and the fact that they come back tells me that it was a healthy and enjoyable experience."

Gephart cherished her interactions and conversations with the alumni, letting them know how much she appreciates their contributions to the program.

She also shared how proud she is that they continued their careers in the pool beyond the high school level.

"Swimming is a demanding sport, and it takes a lot of discipline to compete at the collegiate level while managing academics and everything else that comes with college life," she said. "Seeing them succeed and grow is incredibly rewarding, and we're all very proud of what they're doing."

"More than anything, it makes me happiest to know that these athletes enjoy swimming enough to continue beyond high school. That tells me their experience here was positive, and to me, that's the most important measure of success."

Gephart is also proud to have had the opportunity to play a role in help to guide the alumni—and all of her former athletes—through their all-important developmental years.

"One purpose of the program is to give kids a real experience of what it's like to be healthy and fit," she said. "I try to teach them the reasons behind what we do and help them leave the program with the knowledge and habits required to live a healthy life.

"Even if my athletes don't end up swimming in college, I feel especially gratified when I see them staying active, eating well and carrying all of that forward into their lives."

Saugatuck's Diaz celebrates 25 years on the sidelines

By Jason Wesseldyk
Sports Editor

SAUGATUCK--Even as a young boy growing up in Saugatuck, Andy Diaz knew he wanted to stay involved in sports once his playing days were over.

"It was something my brothers, Mario and Matt, and I talked about a lot," Diaz said. "We always felt a responsibility to give back to the community that had given so much to us."

Diaz has been giving back for a quarter of a century, reaching the 25-year anniversary of his coaching career during the recent football season at Saugatuck.

"Coaching is really in my family's DNA," Diaz said. "From my brother Mario helping start the West Ottawa hockey program with Terry Cutter in the mid-90s, to now coaching sprinters in track here at Saugatuck, to my brother Matt beginning in middle school football when I was still in high school and now assisting with the South Haven girls team.

"Giving back through coaching has always just felt natural for all of us."

Given those family ties, it should come as no surprise that it was his brother Matt who brought Diaz into the coaching community.

Matt Diaz was the JV football coach in Saugatuck at the time and asked his younger brother to join the staff as an assistant coach.

That was in 2001.

After serving as a JV assistant coach for four years, Diaz moved up to head JV coach for one season. He then became defensive coordinator on the varsity squad under current coach Bill Dunn, a role Diaz continued through this season.

"Bill taught me discipline and to respect the process in everything you do," Diaz said. "He was also the one who believed in me and in my abilities."

When asked what has kept him in coaching, Diaz didn't have to think twice.

"The kids keep me in it," he said. "Every year, new groups come in and I get the chance to build relationships with them. My goal is to help them become the best version of themselves—not just in the present, but for their future.

"If you focus on that and do it well, winning games becomes a byproduct of the process."

The same year he started coaching football, then-Saugatuck varsity basketball coach Russ Doane asked Diaz to join him as an assistant coach.

In the years that followed, Diaz served in various roles, moving from head freshman coach to head JV coach.

After his oldest son, Alek, was born, Diaz moved to the middle school level so he wouldn't be away from home as much.

Beginning in 2015, Diaz had a two-year stint as varsity basketball coach at Saugatuck following the resignation of Tom Kazen.

"When my youngest was born, I stepped back again from varsity but later returned for two years as the JV coach at the request of the new head coach, Brian Ward," Diaz said.

For the past two seasons, Diaz has returned to middle school basketball so he could coach while his son Alek was there.

"That was a great experience to share with him," Diaz said.

While coaching Alek ranks among Diaz's highlights on the basketball court, he had a tougher time narrowing down his favorite memories from football.

"It's tough because I've been blessed with so many moments," he said. "From winning our first game and snapping a 42-game losing streak, to beating Fennville for the first time in 16 years, to our first playoff win against Blanchard Montabella, to coaching twice at Ford Field."

Ultimately, though, the memories that mean the most always come back to family, including spending

Changes announced by MHSAA for winter sports

EAST LANSING—The Michigan High School Athletic Association will award District and Regional team championships in girls wrestling for the first time this winter, highlighting a series of changes as the 2025-26 winter sports season gets underway across the state.

Ice hockey, gymnastics, competitive cheer, girls and boys bowling, Upper Peninsula girls and boys swimming & diving, girls and boys wrestling, and boys basketball have already begun competition for the 2025-26 season. Girls and boys skiing, Lower Peninsula boys swimming & diving, and girls basketball are scheduled to begin over the next week.

The first Finals team championship in girls wrestling was awarded to Grand Haven at the conclusion of the 2024-25 season, with scoring based on results from individual brackets at the MHSAA Individual Finals. This winter, District and Regional team champions will be determined using the same format as the sport continues to grow toward the possibility of a head-to-head team tournament.

Participation in girls wrestling has more than doubled in recent years, with 1,505 athletes competing during the 2024-25 season compared to 620 during the 2021-22 season, the first year the MHSAA conducted a girls division at the Individual Finals.

Ice hockey also will see a notable change this season, as teams are now permitted to play 27 regular-season games—two more than in previous seasons—plus one scrimmage.

One on-ice rule change also will be noticeable. A puck resting on top of the goal netting between the crossbar and the goal frame is now considered unplayable and results in an immediate stoppage of play. A puck outside the netting and below the crossbar remains in play.

Several basketball rule changes this winter address goaltending. Offensive teams no longer can be called for goaltending violations, eliminating ambiguity over whether a ball was a shot or a pass.

Additionally, once the ball contacts the backboard, it is automatically considered to be on its downward flight. If a player touches the ball after it hits the backboard and the ball has a possibility of entering the basket, it is to be ruled as goaltending.

Another basketball rule change expands the definition of basket interference to include instances when a player slaps or strikes the backboard, causing it or the basket to vibrate, while the ball is on or within the basket, touching the backboard, or within the cylinder.

As was permitted during the fall Lower Peninsula girls swimming & diving season, backstroke ledges will be allowed during the Lower Peninsula boys and Upper Peninsula girls and boys seasons in pools that maintain a six-foot water depth. If used, identical ledges must be provided by the host school for all lanes, although individual swimmers are not required to use them.

Also in swimming & diving, during relay exchanges, the second, third and fourth swimmers must have one foot stationary at the front edge of the deck. The remainder of their bodies may be in motion prior to the finish of the incoming swimmer.

The 2025-26 winter postseason begins with the Upper Peninsula Girls & Boys Swimming & Diving Finals on Feb. 21 and concludes with the Girls Basketball Finals on March 21.

A one-year calendar adjustment will move this season's Competitive Cheer Finals one week later than usual, to March 6-7, to accommodate scheduling at McGuirk Arena at Central Michigan University.

Competitive cheer Districts are scheduled for Feb. 20-21, 2026, with Regionals on Feb. 28 and Finals the following weekend. The 2026-27 season and future competitive cheer calendars will return to the previously approved schedule, with Finals held during the last Friday and Saturday in February.

MHSAA Rep. Council addresses various issues

EAST LANSING—The Representative Council of the Michigan High School Athletic Association addressed a variety of ongoing topics relevant to its member schools during its Fall Meeting on Dec. 5.

Among the items discussed were the MHSAA's transfer and 5th-quarter rules, updates on several sports initiatives, and the Council's annual elections.

Generally, the Council takes limited formal action during its Fall Meeting, instead introducing topics for further discussion and potential action during its meetings in March and May. At this meeting, the Council approved its annual audit as its lone formal action while laying groundwork for additional discussion throughout the remainder of the school year.

A significant portion of the meeting focused on the MHSAA's transfer and 5th-quarter allowance rules. Discussion regarding transfers centered on students who participate in non-MHSAA sports organizations during their early high school years but later seek to compete at an MHSAA member school.

The Council also received an update on the Transfer Tracker tool currently under development. The tool is designed to provide schools with greater guidance on eligibility determinations by monitoring when students change schools after ninth grade.

Conversation regarding the 5th-quarter allowance examined how recent allowances in basketball, football, soccer, lacrosse, baseball and field hockey have aligned with the intent of the rule. That intent is to help schools avoid eliminating sub-varsity teams because of low participation by allowing athletes to compete on both varsity and sub-varsity teams for a limited number of periods each week.

The Council also received updates on this fall's inaugural MHSAA Field Hockey Tournament and the first boys volleyball season, which is scheduled to be played during the spring of 2026.

Additional updates included a baseball rule proposal that would require the use of a double first base, recent viewership trends for NFHS Network broadcasts, and discussions from the MHSAA Sports Medicine Advisory Committee. Those discussions included a focus on the statewide shortage of athletic trainers in schools.

MHSAA staff also provided updates on athletic director update meetings, in-service programs, and other administrative topics.

The Fall Meeting also included elections of Council officers for the upcoming year. Brighton athletic director John Thompson was reelected president after completing the remainder of the previous president's term this summer and fall.

Calumet teacher and former athletic director Sean Jacques was reelected vice president after completing Thompson's previous term, while Vic Michaels, director of physical education and athletics for the Archdiocese of Detroit, was reelected secretary-treasurer.

Additionally, Wyoming Godfrey-Lee Schools superintendent Arnetta Thompson and Freeland Middle School principal Jennifer Thunberg were appointed to second two-year terms on the Council.

The Representative Council serves as the legislative body of the MHSAA. All but five members are elected by member schools, with four members appointed by the Council to ensure representation of females and minorities. The 19th position is held by the state superintendent of public instruction or a designee.

two decades coaching football alongside his older brothers.

"I've been able to share all these moments with my two brothers, which is so special," Diaz said. "Growing up, we spent hours playing tackle football in the living room, home run derby with wiffle balls over the pine tree, or one-on-one pretending to hit a last-second shot to win a championship.

"The fact that all these years later we were able to stand on actual athletic fields together as coaches—that's what means the most to me."

The depth of the Diaz family's roots in Saugatuck football is evident in the fact that a member of the family has played or coached in the program since 1981. When Diaz's youngest son, Oliver, becomes a junior, it will mark 50 consecutive years of a Diaz being part of Saugatuck football.

"I'm incredibly proud of that," Diaz said.

Diaz is also incredibly proud of—and deeply thankful for—his wife, Lisa.

"I cannot thank my wife enough," Diaz said. "People don't always realize the sacrifices our families make so that coaches can give so much time to others. She's always there—through the good and the bad.

"Early in our relationship, I'm not sure she knew exactly what she was getting herself into, but she has become the rock of everything I do."

And what Diaz has done as a coach has left a lasting impression on the young men he has mentored.

"I hope they know how much I truly care about them," Diaz said of his former athletes. "They have enriched my life far more than I could have ever enriched theirs. Nothing makes me happier than running into a former player as an adult and seeing how far they've come."

Ellise Wedge goes for the Gold

By Gari Voss

Just as with the Boy Scouts, the Girl Scouts have a special community based award that the girls hope to accomplish before graduating from high school. The Gold Award is present to young women who take time to assess the needs of their community then accomplish a task that will address one identified need.

Ellise Wedge has done just that. Currently a junior at Allegan High School and a student in the Early College Program at the Allegan Area Tech Center, Ellise has decided to culminate her eleven years with Allegan Girl Schout Troop 80024 by creating a special firepit in Hopkins. This will be a special place where ceremonies can be held for retired flags to be properly burned.

Why Hopkins? Though Ellise is a student and Girl Scout in Allegan, she is also a member of the Hopkins Future Farmers of America (FFA) and 4-H Club. As the reporter for these groups, she became aware that an Allegan Eagle Scout had built flag depository boxes which are located at the Allegan American Legion Hall and Allegan Fire Station #1. Hopkins had been collecting retired flags, but there was no place in Hopkins to hold the disposal ceremony.

"My project will unite Allegan County members by the remembrance and honoring of American patriotism through a flag retirement ring in the Village of Hopkins," stated Wedge. "Not only will this retirement ring bring people together, but it will give people a place to retire their flags in the respectful and proper order since there in no place to do it in Hopkins."

As a Girl Scout, Wedge has experienced building

Ellise Wedge is completing her Girl Scout Gold Award by creating a ceremonial firepit in Hopkins near the Veterans Memorial and Flagpole where the scouts can properly burn retired flags. community through the completion of badges, selling cookies, attending Camp Merrie Wood, learning basic life skills, and interacting with nature.

"I think that all of these opportunities, especially selling Girl Scout cookies have improved my skills for public speaking," shared Wedge. "Selling and marketing a product really set me up for the skills I have today for public speaking. I'm always thankful for that along with doing camping and fun things where I hang out with my friends."

The ceremonies at the fire ring held a special memory. "Our troop has stressed learning how to be a role model and respect people who have come before us to make life better for us. Now that we are older, we concentrate more on doing community action rather than completing badges. Learning respect and giving us opportunities to be thankful for what people older than us have done."

When discerning what project could impact the people of a community, Ellise learned that Hopkins honored the veterans and those who had served their community. "Hopkins recently started collecting flags, so my project focused on providing a pit that could get the community involved in retiring those flags. I knew the project would be sustainable and have a long lasting impact which is one aspect of a Gold Award project."

The location will be at the Hopkins Community Reformed Church. "I wanted to place it in the center of Hopkins at the Veteran's Memorial and flagpole, but there was not enough room. So, we are putting it at the church which is right next to the park," explained Wedge. "I wanted it to be seen so others could participate and ask questions to learn about the firepit and the ceremony."

Once the location was identified, the planning and gathering of materials began. "Seabright Products in Hopkins is donating the fire ring and covering the engraving costs," stated Wedge. "To protect it because it cannot be used to burn garbage or other things, there will be a cover. My fundraiser is to place pavers around the fire ring. Each paver will be engraved. People can sponsor pavers to honor someone and have them engraved in memory of people. They can include messages, and put their name or not. The profits from the sale of the pavers will be used to create the remainder of the ceremony area."

Wedge has launched the fundraiser for the paving bricks, the pavers can be purchased at https://forms.gle/eC1eFKA-Kud8rVH2B9 for an 8"x 8" engraved brick or https://forms.gle/ngd-fv9YsPzdk6pvm6 for a 4"x 8" engraved brick.

As Wedge continues her education to complete her associates of arts degree with Lake Michigan College at the Allegan Tech Center, to continue her work with the Hopkins FFA and 4-H acting as chapter reporter, and to raise and show lambs and rabbits, and to share her music at Peace Lutheran Church in Otsego, she will prepare to begin the construction of the Flag Retirement Ring in Hopkins.

The project definitely meets the requirements for a prestigious Girl Scout Gold Award – She will utilize all that she has learned in Girl Scouts to address a need in a community where the project can have a sustainable effect for others. As she states, there is a team of adults and leaders who have been instrumental in honing her skills. Now, she is on her way to successfully completing a project step-by-step that will achieve her desire to show respect and honor those who came before her to make her life better.

Laketown Township parks workshop looks at invasives treatment

The Laketown Township Parks and Recreation Commission's second indoor winter program is 11 a.m. Saturday, Jan. 10, 2026, at the Laketown Township Hall, 4338 Beeline Road.

Ari Henson, restoration coordinator for the Allegan Conservation District, will discuss the cut-stump method of treating woody invasives. Using this method, a person cuts the invasive close to the ground and treats the stump to prevent further growth.

The event is free.

"Ari gives a very informative presentation, and this method is perfect for homeowners," said Mary Jo Bertolino, Laketown parks commissioner and organizer of the winter events. "This procedure is a very effective treatment for homeowners who are reluctant to use herbicides due to overspray and effects on animals and humans."

Henson will go over the multiple options for application containers, benefits of the cut-stump method, and timing and disposal of the invasive species. She will also show how to mix and fill the application containers. No actual herbicides will be used during the presentation.

A volunteer removes invasive plants at Saugatuck Dunes State Park in Laketown Township on March 23, 2025, using the cut-stump method. The techniques will be discussed in a free workshop on Saturday, Jan. 10, 2026, at Laketown Township Hall, 4338 Beeline Road.

Other upcoming presentations include:

February: Ben Savoie will lead a free presentation of oak wilt including the cause, prevention and how to stop the spread of this disease, at 1 p.m. Feb. 10. The location is to be announced.

March: Andy Rozendaal, farm director of Eighth Day Farm in Holland, will lead a Kitchen Herb Garden presentation with suggestions for using the herbs in your cooking by Corey Mitchell from The Beard and The Gal. The date has not yet been set but it will be at the Carriage House at The Felt Estate, 6579 138 th Ave. Rozendaal will be bringing herbs to demonstrate a small kitchen garden planter and gardening information for those who have more garden space.

The parks commission started its first winter programs in the first half of 2025 with presentations including hands-only CPR, mushroom identification and butterfly gardens.

This winter's programs started in November with for Native American Heritage Month with a workshop on "Talking Sticks," an object traditionally used in council circles to designate who had the right to speak.

Peek at the Past

From the pages of The Allegan News and The Allegan County News and Gazette:

Jan. 4, 1951

Neighbors override rule to help grocer: Neighbors of Ed Sweet, whose grocery store was destroyed by lightning and fire, have volunteered to make it easier for him to rebuild on a better location.

Sweet planned to rebuild on the same site as his former grocery. The city recently adopted a zoning ordinance didn't interfere with this project, since Sweet had started expansion of his store before new zoning went into effect.

A better location with more space for parking was available across the street, but building a grocery there was prohibited by the ordinance, which had set back for residential building.

Sweet's neighbors Tuesday night petitioned him to permit reconstruction on the new site, but Sweet said that as per the ordinance, he could not do so unless a majority of the residents owning property on the covered zoning regulations approved.

At a special meeting Tuesday night, the neighbors voted unanimously to allow Sweet to rebuild on the new site.

Baehre buys Zantello Motors: Effective Tuesday, the Allegan-area Jeep dealer, Inc., of Zantello Motors Inc., just east of the city on M-89, became Baehre AMC-Jeep Inc.

Tuesday marked completion of a sales agreement between Ray Zantello, who owned and operated Zantello Motors Inc. for 11 years, and Gordon Baehre, owner of Baehre Ford & Mercury in Allegan and a number of other area automotive businesses.

The 62-year-old Zantello said he sold the business to transfer the responsibility of running the business so he can go into "semi-retirement" and take some time off once in a while.

Zantello said he will remain with the business as sales capacity at least thru spring, and he added that all personnel at the business will remain with the dealership.

He expressed his thanks to all his loyal customers for their years of steady business and said he "hopes they will come around."

Owner and operator of a garage gas station-used car lot combination in Kalamazoo for 22 years before opening his business in Allegan, Zantello and his wife, Ada, live at 107 Lincoln, Otsego.

Koops sworn in, takes over duties as sheriff: As Blaine Koops took the reins as Allegan County sheriff Jan. 1, 2001, part of his ex-chief and administrative staff is in place. He planned to place his staff by hiring an administrative assistant after the first year.

He planned to evaluate department programs and projects in consultation with staff over the next six months.

Koops chose Terry Fisk of Hudsonville as the new undersheriff. The county commissioners approved the hiring of Fisk last week, setting the annual salary at $64,751. Human resources has not yet determined a salary for the new sheriff.

At Koops' swearing-in on his new office Thursday, Dec. 28, solid lines of officers in sheriff's brown uniforms dominated the gallery in the circuit courtroom of Judge George R. Corsiglia. Family members and friends of Koops sat in the jury box.

Before administering the oath of office to the new sheriff, Corsiglia said no doubt Koops would preside over changes for the better in county policing.

"Not only has Blaine had the overall overwhelming support of the professional, law-enforcement community, but also the electorate," Corsiglia said.

The new sheriff addressed his concerns largely to the brown lines in the gallery. "Faith, honor and duty are the credo we live by," he said.

Martin football prepares for state semis after long wait: When the Martin football team got together for practice on Monday, Dec. 28, the players were a bit rusty.

Not that Clippers coach Brad Blauvelt was surprised. After all, it had been more than six weeks since his squad had last played.

"The first practice was a little rough," said Blauvelt, who is preparing his team for the Division 8-Playoff semifinals against Lenawee Christian on Saturday, Jan. 9. "But we had some good practices since then. Once the kids got back into the groove and started having fun again, things went well."

The game with Lenawee Christian was originally scheduled for Friday, Nov. 20, but due to a COVID-related emergency order from the Michigan Department of Health and Human Services, the playoffs were suspended earlier that week.

The initial emergency order was set to expire on Tuesday, Dec. 8, before being extended, leaving Martin's season in flux.

"We've been together since June when conditioning was allowed again, so this whole process has been long," Blauvelt said. "Everything is a waiting game and there's so much uncertainty. It's hard to stay focused.

"I thought we were going to play in the spring once the (emergency order) was extended, so when they told us we were going to finish it sometime after Christmas, I was very happy that we got to finish what we started and eventually have some closure."

As a requirement to restart the playoffs, MDHHS is requiring all players and coaches to participate in a COVID rapid-test pilot program. In a COVID rapid-test pilot program, all participants must receive a negative test result prior to practice.

THE MICHIGAN WELLHEAD PROTECTION PROGRAM: PROTECTING YOUR DRINKING WATER

IMPORTANCE OF GROUNDWATER

In the United States, groundwater is the source of drinking water for half of the total population and 95% of the rural population. Groundwater is also used for raising livestock, agriculture, and industry. Within Michigan, approximately 50% of the population relies on groundwater to supply their drinking water needs. Community drinking water systems are at risk from many possible contamination sources and no community wants to face the loss of its drinking water.

In an effort to protect this valuable resource, the State of Michigan established the Michigan Wellhead Protection Program (WHPP). This program is a voluntary program for communities that use groundwater to supply their wells.

WHAT IS THE WELLHEAD PROTECTION PROGRAM?

First, it is important to determine the area which contributes groundwater to the public water wells. Communities will hire a consulting firm to do a thorough review of the groundwater that is supplying the drinking water wells. This study will determine how fast the groundwater is flowing and in what direction the groundwater is flowing. This area is called the Wellhead Protection Area (WHPA). An example of a WHPA is included. At the edge of this area, it would take ten years for contamination to reach the community wells. This is the area that communities will manage and protect. Steps to manage and protect this area include:

1. ESTABLISH A TEAM – Identify people that play an important role in groundwater protection. Examples: managers, water superintendents, zoning administrators, teachers, fire department officials, business leaders, farmers and residents.
2. CONTAMINANT SOURCE INVENTORY – Identify known and potential sites of contamination within the WHPA and include in a contaminant source inventory list and map.
3. MANAGEMENT STRATEGIES – Provide mechanisms that will reduce the risk of contamination. Examples: plugging abandoned wells and implementing zoning ordinances.
4. CONTINGENCY PLANNING – Develop a contingency plan in case of a water emergency.
5. PLAN FOR NEW WELLS – Provide information on existing groundwater availability, the need for new wells and the vulnerability of the existing wells to contamination.
6. PUBLIC EDUCATION – Educate the public about drinking water protection through brochures, placemats, presentations, newsletters and other educational activities.

RELIGION SECTION

In I Corinthians 29: we find the verse often used in many churches when it is time to pass the collection plate: "All things come from thee, O Lord, and of thine own have we given thee." In very practical terms, it means the money we are contributing to our church originates with God, and we are merely returning a portion of it.

Let's take it beyond the offering or pledge drive. The verse is about true stewardship, and it is all encompassing. Everything came from God; everything belongs to God, and we are trustees for a short time.

As we begin a new year, let's think about the most precious commodity God has given us. I believe it is the gift of time. For me, that means how we use, waste, or invest our time is a clear reflection of our faith in God's presence. God has given the same exact amount of time to each person: Twenty-four hours a day. To be sure, we do not know how many of those days we get, but today, if only for this day, he has given us these twenty-four hours.

It's no good moaning, "If only I had more time." It is an equal allowance to everyone from the homeless person to the wealthiest person in the world.

We sometimes ask what was Monet's secret that he could produce so many paintings, or how Bach raised a huge family, taught music lessons, practiced and rehearsed, and created a new composition for each Sunday morning. There are many other overachievers in our world. How did they do it? How did they find the time to do it? We could ask the same question of anyone who is creative in any area of life.

I think, at least in part, we gain some insight from looking at the life of Ernest Hemingway. For him, everything was important. His many fishing trips out of the Florida Keys became important because he used his experiences to write The Old Man and the Sea. His time as an ambulance driver and a war correspondent was important because it led to his novel, The Sun Also Rises. Even his time as a new writer, living in poverty and hunger became important to him because he translated them into A Moveable Feast.

The experiences became the ideas swirling in his mind, he agonized over the first sentence and first paragraph of a short story or book. For him, it had to be right - not just good, not acceptable. It had to be the most perfect sentence he could write.

I believe you and I honor God when we very intentionally do our best job creating anything. The subject doesn't matter, whether it is a family dinner or a great feast; a plate of cookies or a magnificent dessert. We do our best, and whatever time it takes to do the work is returning back to God the gift of time he gave to us.

As we move into this new year, perhaps the most important spiritual work we can do is reflect over how we are going to honor and glorify God by the ways in which we invest the time he gives us. And then, of course, get to work.
